

How Redcare Classic caught a potential football thief

“You can sleep easy at nights knowing your customer is surrounded by Redcare installations”

Graham Steedman, Managing Director of Premier Services (Fife) Ltd

When an intruder was found near Dunfermline Athletic Football Club in the middle of the night, police believed he intended to commit theft – and he was convicted with the help of Redcare.

The club is protected by Redcare Classic provided via customer Premier Services and managing director Graham Steedman is full of praise for the speed with which the system brought police to the crime scene.

“The club’s academy is in a remote location, and it was around 3.30 on a Sunday morning when the intruder was there, so there was absolutely no-one around,” he said.

“The academy had hosted an event that day, and the takings were still on the premises. The telephone lines and power cables had been cut – but the Redcare Classic line is policed, and the police were called.”

The forces of law and order were waiting for the intruder, and he has now been convicted of being in the vicinity and prepared to commit theft. A second man’s plea of not guilty was accepted.

Established in 1987 Premier Services (Fife) Ltd has developed into one of the largest independent Scottish-based providers of services in the security and environmental markets. “Our customer was understandably delighted, and so were the police,” said Graham.

The company was founded by Graham Steedman and Alex Mill and has expanded from small beginnings to a company of ten staff including two directors, three admin staff and five engineers and servicemen.

Graham said: “We have been with Redcare from the very start, and we are more than happy with the product.

“We always use Redcare, because although other signalling systems are good, you can sleep easy at nights knowing your customer is surrounded by Redcare installations.”
